British Claim "Coventry" Methods Being Used To Decimate Mannheim

London Says Nazis Finding Homes For Children In Poland, Austria

BELGRADE, April 2—Formal German negotiations to name a new minister to Yugoslavia, replacing Viktor Von Heeren, aroused new hopes of a compromise solution of the Berlin-Belgrade crisis today although fears of a sudden Nazi blow persisted.

Even as a panicky mass evacuation of civilians from Belgrade got under way, the German government notified the foreign office of its desire to appoint Ulrich Von Hasselt as new envoy to Belgrade.

By International News Service. The fate of Yugoslavia wavered precariously between peace and war today as the Yugoslav-Nazi crisis overshadowed virtually all other European developments.

At the same time, Rome claimed combined Italian and German troops had captured Mersa Brega in Libya and informed quarters in London declared Mannheim now is Germany's "Coventry" as a result of heavy RAF raids.

A dispatch from Belgrade said residents of the Yugoslavian capital had begun a panicky mass exodus from the city for fear of a sudden German blow, and that Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic had acted to halt this by forbidding Yugoslavians to abandon their homes.

In an order of the day Simovic said apprehension was unjustified. Nevertheless, Yugoslav officials became increasingly pessimistic regarding the outcome of efforts to settle the Belgrade-Berlin crisis through the good offices of Premier Mussolini. It Duce has agreed to receive the Yugoslavian premier and foreign minister after Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka leaves Rome.

Wild West Tactics Of F. D. Flayed

German Publication Calls President Gangster; Seizure Irks Axis

ROME, April 2—Italy, Germany, Japan and other members of the tripartite alliance will react fully if the United States commits "any new real act of belligerence, even without a formal declaration," Virginio Gayda, press spokesman for Premier Mussolini, said today.

BERLIN, April 2—Seizure of German and Italian ships by the United States and other American republics rankled deeply in official German circles today and all indications pointed to future German retaliation by whatever methods prove possible.

German circles expressed the view that the United States was "chief instigator" of the ship seizures carried out by Latin American nations, where the Reich is expected to lodge protests and demands for reparations.

Diplomatic Correspondence, organ of the German foreign office, termed the seizures of axis ships, a "new act of violence by the Roosevelt government."

This publication added: "The North American gangster coup did not succeed 100 percent, because German and Italian seamen frustrated the law breakers by means of legitimate counter-measures. "This, however, does not alter the flagrant breach of international law, carried out in Wild West style."

Peruvians Arrest Nazi Officials

LIMA, Peru, April 2—Peruvian authorities today arrested the Lima agents for the German steamers Leipzig and Monserrate, which were scuttled by their crews after an unsuccessful attempt to dash to sea from Callao Harbor.

Joint managers of the German Lufthansa air lines were also under arrest and Peruvian troops were still in control of the airline's hangars and workshops, which they occupied yesterday.

The Lima office of the German Transocean News Agency also was closed by Peruvian officials.

400,000 Men Not To Work Without Pact; Harlan Scene Of Fighting

HARLAN, Ky., April 2—Five men were killed and four injured in gun play today between CIO-UMW pickets and non-union factions. The five were identified as unionists. The fight took place at the Crumleys Creek Mine, five miles from Harlan.

NEW YORK, April 2—Soft coal mines in twelve states, employing 400,000 men, were idle today in the face of President Roosevelt's message informing wage negotiators in New York that "uninterrupted operation is extremely important."

The President's representative, Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the United States Conciliation Service, tried hard to effect a settlement in the wage controversy by midnight last night—but failed.

However, Dr. Steelman was able to inform Mr. Roosevelt at midnight—the President had asked a report from him by that hour—that "progress" had been made and that representatives of the miners and operators had agreed to continue negotiations another forty-eight hours.

The net result of Steelman's strenuous efforts was that the miners' committee, headed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and a committee of operators led by Ezra Van Horn, resumed their wordy battle across the conference table this morning.

But, meanwhile, the mines were idle and, according to Lewis, the bituminous workers will not return to their jobs until a new (Continued on Page Eight)

CANDY CONTAINING RAT POISON BEING BLAMED FOR DEATH OF BOY, 5

ATHENS, April 2—One child died in a hospital today and four others were ill, presumably from eating candy containing a poison intended to kill rats at the city garbage dump.

Herman Durfee, Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Durfee, of near Athens, died in Shelters Arms hospital where his two young sisters were reported in fair condition. Two other children of the same family were ill at home.

Although the surviving children denied eating the candy at the dump, county authorities believe that is what made them ill. Prosecutor Harry Mettler said Herman's stomach should be taken to Columbus for examination.

ADDITIONAL WORK FOR WELDERS IS ADVISED

Circleville's Defense Committee told members of the Circleville board of education Tuesday night that the number of applications for a class in welding under the Vocational Guidance-National Defense program would justify establishment of two classes in the field. More than 60 young men have expressed their desire to enroll in a welding class, the Defense Committee reported.

The committee also recommended that a class in electricity be set up, but said there was not a sufficient number of young men interested in automobiles to justify a class at the present time. The board of education will consider the recommendations of the committee at its next regular meeting April 15.

MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT WORKERS OUT ON STRIKE

COLUMBUS, April 2—Denied wage increases, 40 employees of the Columbus municipal light plant and 17 in the city building department went on strike today.

Mayor Floyd Green declared that power service would be maintained and that operations of the building inspection division would continue.

The municipal power plant furnishes electricity to city departments and to a limited number of private consumers. An independent company supplies most Columbus consumers.

If necessary, the police department will be called on to guarantee maintenance of power service at the municipal plant, Mayor Green said. He added that 350 policemen are available.

The mayor contended that the condition of the city's finances would permit no wage increases in any department for the present. City council concurred with the mayor's stand, reversing its previous position.

The men who walked out at the light plant were linemen, their helpers, troubleshooters and laborers. They were joined by 17 city building inspectors.

Operations at the light plant continued through the forenoon. There were no picket lines.

TRACTOR-TRAILER OUTFIT TURNS OVER INTO DITCH

A tractor-trailer unit, loaded with planks used in road construction, ran from the highway on Route 22 just west of Route 104 Tuesday night about 9:30, the trailer turning over on its side when its wheels struck the ditch.

Governor Of Wisconsin Calls For Federal Aid Following Strike Riot

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 2—Bowling to what he termed "mob rule," Gov. Julius P. Heil of Wisconsin ordered the strike-bound Allis-Chalmers plant shut down again today, only five days after it was reopened by government request so that work might be resumed on $45,000,000 worth of vital National Defense orders.

Closing of the plant, object of a strike called January 21 by the CIO United Auto Workers, came after serious riots yesterday and last night in which 4,000 strikers and sympathizers battled with police and for a time kept even the governor himself a prisoner in the besieged factory.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, Gov. Heil declared Wisconsin authorities were unable to cope with the strikers. Referring to yesterday's rioting, the governor told the President that "a mob created a condition of riot and civil commotion in this community and created disorder which is beyond the control of all the peace officers which can be assembled."

"The situation is absolutely out of control," Gov. Heil informed the President. "I am notifying you of this situation in order that you may direct such action as you deem advisable."

Gov. Heil's telegram to the President was interpreted as an appeal for federal troops should the government desire the plant reopened. Last evening, before deciding to close the factory after a conference with officials of the company and police heads, the governor appealed directly to Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commander of the Sixth Army Corps, for 5,000 soldiers from Fort Sheridan.

Gen. Bonesteel, however, informed the governor only the President could call out federal troops.

Dr. Oliver's verdict was suicide, failing health blamed for the act.

Ford Company Engaged In Much Defense Work

DETROIT, April 2—A survey revealed today the following defense contracts held, and the defense projects engaged in, by the Ford Motor Co., whose immense Rouge plant in Dearborn was declared "struck" by the United Automobile Workers Union, CIO.

A contract to build 4,000 Pratt and Whitney type airplane engines at a cost of $122,000,000.

An $11,000,000 airplane engine plant and a magnesium alloy foundry ultimately to be paid for by the government.

A contract to build 1,500 "blitz-buggies" for the army at a cost of $1,037,500.

An $11,000,000 plant under preliminary construction near Ypsilanti for the production of parts for long-range bombers. Experiments being carried on

VIOLENCE BREAKS OUT AT BIG ROUGE PLANT

80,000 Men Idle, Defense Orders Valued At $155,000,000 Held Up By Difficulty With CIO-UAW; Workers, Pickets Fight

20 MEN INJURED IN KNIFE BATTLE

Call By Bennett For Men To Return Fails; Dearborn Mayor Says Rights Of Citizens Being Ignored; State Police Ordered

DETROIT, April 2—For the first time in the 38-year existence of the Ford Motor Co., a strike today by the CIO United Automobile Workers Union forced the closing of the immense Rouge plant in Dearborn—the largest single industrial establishment in the world—tied up National Defense orders totalling $155,000,000 and made nearly 80,000 men idle.

Violence broke out and 20 men were injured in a battle between 150 non-strikers armed with knives and iron shafts and 300 pickets in front of Gate 4. In addition, there were sporadic fights at all approaches to the 1,200-acre plant.

The outbreak of violence prompted Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner, here in Detroit, to notify State Police Commissioner Oscar G. Olander in Lansing to send "the full available manpower of the state police to Dearborn at once for the purpose of maintaining order."

A company spokesman said that the plant could not operate because not enough men to man the machines had been able to get through the extensive picket lines. The company said that less than 2,000 men were in the plant.

Michael F. Widman, Jr., director of the union's Ford organizing committee, said:

"The strike is completely effective. The only persons in the plant this morning are members of the Service Department, who remained through the night, and some maintenance men in the glass building, the press steel building and the power house whom the union requested to report for work."

Bennett Plea Ignored
"Harry Bennett's appeal that the Rouge employees report for work was ignored by the entire day shift. This followed the equally universal demonstration of UAW-CIO support given by the afternoon and night shifts yesterday."

"... The response to the strike call again demonstrates the deep resentment of the Ford workers against conditions in the Rouge plant and their support of the UAW-CIO as their collective bargaining spokesman."

With picket lines and automobile barricades thrown around the heart of the Ford industrial empire, violence flared within an hour after the union members took their stand at five o'clock this morning, a little less than five hours after the strike call was issued. The strike order came after an estimated 10,000 to 14,000 workers left the plant after engaging in a "sit-down."

Rocks and pop bottles flew and heads and shoulders of pickets were beaten when about 75 workers emerged from the plant carrying three-foot metal bars and set on an approximately equal number of pickets at Gate 4.

One Picket Slashed
Widman said that one picket at the gate was slashed with a knife when about 100 men emerged from the plant armed with lead pipes and other weapons and attacked the pickets. Ten strikers, he said, were treated for lacerations at the union's first aid department while a twelfth striker suffered the possible fracture of both arms. When the men returned to the plant, they threw their weapons at the pickets, Widman said.

For a few minutes, a wild melee took place and finally Dearborn police charged the group with drawn night sticks. The pickets (Continued on Page Eight)

Fowler, who has been under suspension since March 4, to the Mansfield Reformatory.

At the Mansfield institution Dr. Fowler will serve as full-time psychiatrist at $3600 a year, without maintenance. Dr. Hopwood will receive $3900 a year and maintenance. He has been employed at Orient, Pickaway County.

BABY DEATH PROBED

There was some opposition to the bill prior to the vote on the grounds that nurses would "practically be practicing medicine" however, the opposition vanished when a large delegation from the Nurses' Association made its appearance in the gallery of the house.

VIOLENCE BREAKS OUT AT BIG ROUGE PLANT

80,000 Men Idle, Defense Orders Valued At $155,000,000 Held Up By Difficulty With CIO-UAW; Workers, Pickets Fight

20 MEN INJURED IN KNIFE BATTLE

Call By Bennett For Men To Return Fails; Dearborn Mayor Says Rights Of Citizens Being Ignored; State Police Ordered

DETROIT, April 2—For the first time in the 38-year existence of the Ford Motor Co., a strike today by the CIO United Automobile Workers Union forced the closing of the immense Rouge plant in Dearborn—the largest single industrial establishment in the world—tied up National Defense orders totalling $155,000,000 and made nearly 80,000 men idle.

Violence broke out and 20 men were injured in a battle between 150 non-strikers armed with knives and iron shafts and 300 pickets in front of Gate 4. In addition, there were sporadic fights at all approaches to the 1,200-acre plant.

The outbreak of violence prompted Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner, here in Detroit, to notify State Police Commissioner Oscar G. Olander in Lansing to send "the full available manpower of the state police to Dearborn at once for the purpose of maintaining order."

A company spokesman said that the plant could not operate because not enough men to man the machines had been able to get through the extensive picket lines. The company said that less than 2,000 men were in the plant.

Michael F. Widman, Jr., director of the union's Ford organizing committee, said:

"The strike is completely effective. The only persons in the plant this morning are members of the Service Department, who remained through the night, and some maintenance men in the glass building, the press steel building and the power house whom the union requested to report for work.

Bennett Plea Ignored "Harry Bennett's appeal that the Rouge employees report for work was ignored by the entire day shift. This followed the equally universal demonstration of UAW-CIO support given by the afternoon and night shifts yesterday."

"... The response to the strike call again demonstrates the deep resentment of the Ford workers against conditions in the Rouge plant and their support of the UAW-CIO support given by the afternoon and night shifts yesterday."

With picket lines and automobile barricades thrown around the heart of the Ford industrial empire, violence flared within an hour after the union members took their stand at five o'clock this morning, a little less than five hours after the strike call was issued. The strike order came after an estimated 10,000 to 14,000 workers left the plant after engaging in a "sit-down."

Rocks and pop bottles flew and heads and shoulders of pickets were beaten when about 75 workers emerged from the plant carrying three-foot metal bars and set on an approximately equal number of pickets at Gate 4.

One Picket Slashed Widman said that one picket at the gate was slashed with a knife when about 100 men emerged from the plant armed with lead pipes and other weapons and attacked the pickets. Ten strikers, he said, were treated for lacerations at the union's first aid depot while a twelfth striker suffered the possible fracture of both arms. When the men returned to the plant, they threw their weapons at the pickets, Widman said.

For a few minutes, a wild melee took place and finally Dearborn police charged the group with drawn night sticks. The pickets (Continued on Page Eight)

ISTANBUL, April 2—Bearing the new Yugoslavian air attaché to Moscow with a special message for Soviet Premier and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, a large Yugoslavian airplane arrived at Istanbul airport direct from Belgrade today and left shortly afterward for the Soviet capital. The plane remained only long enough to refuel.

Reliable information said the air attaché had a personal message from Yugoslav Premier Gen. Dusan Simovic for Molotov. Well-informed sources expressed belief the message was of prime importance.

It was understood the plane will return to Ankara with the Yugoslavian minister in Moscow. The latter, it was said, has been sent for to participate in conversations with Turkish officials and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden regarding the general Balkan situation. Eden is expected here from Athens by plane on Friday. (Editor's Note: An International News Service dispatch from Istanbul yesterday reported plans for a military alliance embracing Britain, Yugoslavia and Greece.)

Tuesday shortly after the noon hour, Dr. G. R. Gardner when driving south on the Lockbourne road and near the Franklin County line, met with an auto accident, the machine turning over into the roadside ditch.

William Toole who happened to be near, brought Dr. Gardner to Dr. L. C. Schiff's office where it was found by X-Ray examination that the left arm was fractured near the shoulder. By Schlegel ambulance he was taken to the office of Dr. Elliott Peters, Columbus, and later to Grant Hospital.

Considerably damaged, the doctor's machine was brought to Foreman's by the wrecking crew, Willard Foreman and Maynard Marion.

The Doctor said about his smashup that this was his first accident in the 28 years that he'd been driving an auto and thought that was a really good record.

Monday was "dead line" day for 1940 auto plates and at Brinker's, registrar office, an even, "steady stream" of patrons was present from early morning until near midnight. Yesterday, Tuesday, 25 purchasers were made happy with new shiny plates good for another year. Sales have been quite considerable above those of last year.

Met on the street here a young man who didn't seem to be quite as "peppy" as we thought he should be, so we applied a couple from "the third" list and found that he was just out for a little exercise recovering from a recent operation. It is Howard Mahaffey with Ashville his home town now, son of our mechanic engineer out at school. And more, this youngster is a three-year medical student at O.S.U.

In Squire Elmer Malone's court Tuesday, George Strapp, Columbus, was assessed $10 and costs for reckless auto operation. He was brought in by a road patrol officer.

Two patients to care for now, Hal Reid told us yesterday. Besides the son Lester, abed recovering from an appendicitis operation, Mrs. Reid is out of the going with an injured knee received in a fall.

The village council in special session Tuesday evening let the contract for the construction of the East Side sewer to Fred Curry at his bid of $12,975.00. There were three other bids.

Thursday evening we have with us at the school auditorium the county school musicians in their annual school Music Festival—some couple hundred of them.

Twenty-four members and guests attended the March meeting of the Ashville Community Club Monday evening for a chicken dinner, business meeting and "Professor Quiz" program.

A very fine chicken dinner highlighted the evening's activities. This was followed by a business session conducted by the club president, A. B. Cooper. A nominating committee was appointed to select a group of men from which the officers—president, secretary and treasurer—will be chosen at the next meeting. This nominating committee is composed of Ed.

Schlegel, E. S. Gable and Ed Irwin. The club voted to contribute a sum of money to the Ashville High School Band fund for the purchase of new uniforms. A discussion was held regarding Ashville as a site for a defense factory of some sort and members were requested to write congressmen and senators about it.

Several guests were in attendance. Mr. Early of Circleville and Mr. Robeson, a new resident of Ashville, and Senor Jose Garzon, a native of Colombia, all connected with the telephone business, were there through the influence of Hoadley Brintlinger, local telephone representative.

The program committee—C. A. Higley and C. E. Mahaffey, presented a question and answer series and a "consequence" clause was attached. Mr. Graham was awarded the prize a mechanical pencil, for answering his two questions correctly. Mr. Woodworth, won the door prize, a flashlight, donated by Clyde Brinker.

Here is the complete attendance—Mr. Brintlinger, Mr. Schlegel, Mr. Carter, Mr. Martin, Mr. Graham, Mr. Scott, Mr. Mahaffey, Mr. Higley, Mr. S. Smith, Mr. Gable, Mr. Warren Brown, Mr. Woodworth, Mr. H. Cromley, Mr. C. Cromley, Mr. Seeds, Mr. Kaiserman Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Jose Garzon, Mr. Early, Mr. Robeson and the three officials, Cooper, Murphy and Irwin. Mr. Brobst was present for a short time. Next meeting will be either the last Monday or the last Friday in April.

Colombian In Circleville Studying Telephone System Being Used Here

By Austin Showman

South Americans are congenial people. They like to smile, talk and take you out to lunch. And while you eat they thank you for everything you do and something you don't, tell you what a fine country the United States is and what a grand town you live in. Then, when they have you feeling good all over they take your meal check away from you and pay it themselves, and immediately you have an urge to rush to the coast and buy a one-way ticket to South America.

Jose Garzon is like that. He has been in this country for the last three years, studying telephone systems and communications, and in July he plans to go back to Colombia and put into practice some of the things he has learned here. He came to Circleville Monday and will stay until Friday, studying the system used at the local telephone office and its extension of lines in the county. Information obtained from a rural community such as Pickaway County can be applied easily to his own country, Mr. Garzon feels.

There are ten million persons in Colombia and only 30,000 telephones. By studying communication systems here, Mr. Garzon believes he can go back to his country and build a network of telephone lines into rural Colombia by extending branches from its 700 miles of main lines. His project, he contends, will help materially to raise the standard of living for the 45 percent of the Colombian population now deprived of education.

To Strengthen Understanding

Understanding and cooperation between the United States and South American countries also will be strengthened by the program, he believes, and in a time when the Colombian government is looking to the United States for protection against Nazi aggression.

Since the outbreak of the present

SPRING QUARTER OPENS

Circleville students at Ohio State University returned to their studies Tuesday, following spring vacation. The spring quarter will end June 16, when commencement will be held in the late afternoon. The quarter brings one holiday, Friday, May 30. Final examinations come June 10-14.

ent World War, the barter system of trade which had been built up between his country and Germany has been suspended, he said. At the present time no Colombian products are being shipped to any central European powers, and South America is looking to the United States for markets for its produce. In return, America may find open markets for its manufactured goods in South American cities.

Although there are rumors that South American countries are infested with Nazi influence, the general attitude of the South American people is predominately pro-ally and pro-American, he said. The Colombian government, which has had compulsory military training for its youth for some time, is using 200 American-made planes, piloted by American airmen, to train its air corps. There are no German planes or German officers in Colombia, he said.

Should the Colombian democratic government be overthrown in Hitler's plan to expand Nazidom, the people would look to the United States for assistance, Mr. Garzon exclaimed, although, he added, the present government in Colombia was the most stable it had had in years. On the other hand, should the United States be drawn into the war on the side of the Allies, Colombia automatically would ally itself with us, the visitor declared.

factured goods in South American cities.

Although there are rumors that South American countries are infested with Nazi influence, the general attitude of the South American people is predominately pro-ally and pro-American, he said. The Colombian government, which has had compulsory military training for its youth for some time, is using 200 American-made planes, piloted by American airmen, to train its air corps. There are no German planes or German officers in Colombia, he said.

Should the Colombian democratic government be overthrown in Hitler's plan to expand Nazidom, the people would look to the United States for assistance, Mr. Garzon exclaimed, although, he added, the present government in Colombia was the most stable it had had in years. On the other hand, should the United States be drawn into the war on the side of the Allies, Colombia automatically would ally itself with us, the visitor declared.

300 Present For Installation Of Elks' Officers

Wives, Lady Friends Invited To Enjoy Outstanding Program

T. A. RENICK TAKES CHAIR

Andrew U. Thomas Retires As Exalted Ruler During Evening

Circleville Lodge of Elks marked one of the outstanding events of its 53-year history Tuesday evening when more than 300 Elks, wives and lady friends and other guests witnessed the impressive installation ceremony and enjoyed a splendid program, buffet lunch and social evening. The event marked the first time that lady Elks have been invited to attend the installation ceremony.

Tom A. Renick, Circleville attorney, became exalted ruler during the evening succeeding Andrew U. Thomas. Other officers to be inducted with the new exalted ruler were Barton R. Deming, leading knight; Leslie D. May, loyal knight; W. Joe Burns, lecturing knight; Leland Pontius, secretary; Clark Will, treasurer; A. J. Lyle, trustee, and Herman Hill, tiler. Mr. Renick appointed Sheldon Mader as the new esquire, Dr. O. J. Towers as chaplain, Tom D. Harman as inner guard and Fred Wittich as organist.

The installation was conducted by Ferd M. Pickens, a past exalted ruler of the Circleville lodge and past district deputy grand exalted ruler. He was assisted by two members of the Columbus Elks lodge; Leslie Scrimger, past exalted ruler of the Columbus lodge; Charles Fast, Columbus, past district deputy; George O. Henry, Columbus lodge officer; Harry L. Bartholomew, and Paul D. Miller, Zanesville, who was exalted ruler of the Circleville lodge last year.

Ritual Impressive
The installation was impressive, the ritual being carried out in a precise manner.

Entertainment included two groups of selections by the Elks double quartette directed by Carl C. Leist with Hunter Chambers as accompanist. This music was sung prior to the installation, members of the organization including George Roth Jr. and Melvin Yates, first tenors; Glen Geib, second tenor; Franklin Crites, Barton Deming and Fred Wittich, first basses and E. C. Ebert and John Hegele, second basses.

A highlight of the evening came following the installation when the Picadors of the Aladdin Temple Shrine of Columbus, with Ralph Churchill, baritone, as soloist, presented their program. The Picadors are directed by Ralph Treadway of Columbus. With the organization was Neth O. Jones, illustrious potentate of the Shrine, who joined with Addison Ritter, pianist, in a piano duet. The Picadors, playing stringed instruments, offered an outstanding program of classic and popular selections. Mr. Pickens, now a resident of Columbus, is a member of the Picador organization.

The buffet lunch prepared by Steward James Carpenter and his aides was served in the dining hall.

Following the lunch the lodge room, club room and dining hall were used for social entertainment. Dancing was enjoyed in the lodge room, while several members of the Picador group entertained a large gathering that remained in the dining hall to sing favorite songs during the remainder of the evening.

Planned By Officers

The evening was planned by Mr. Thomas, Mr. Renick and Secretary Pontius with standing committees of the lodge carrying out their plans. Elliot J. Henry headed the reception committee and presented each lady Elk a pencil favor, the Elks emblem being on each pencil.

Officers, both outgoing and incoming and the Picador organization, were dressed in Tuxedos, carnations being worn in the lapels of each to add color to the evening's festivities.

69 School Pupils Have Roles In Big Operetta

This week Circleville High School music pupils have been holding their final practices of the operetta "All At Sea" which will be presented in the school auditorium Thursday and Friday evenings at 8:15. Dress rehearsal of the presentation was held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

"All At Sea" is the first operetta which Circleville high school has presented in 12 years and the presentation has many outstanding features. The operetta itself is a combination of the Gilbert and Sullivan works, "H.M.S. Pinafore," "The Pirates of Penzance," "Patience," "The Mikado" and "Iolanthe" which was written by David Stevenson with music adaptation by Harvey Worthington Loomis.

This piece was written to assemble in a plausible way some of the favorite songs from the best-known operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan, associated with a slender story in such a manner that they may be presented without the sense of disconnection that attends performance of detached stories. The author in trying to preserve the atmosphere created by the master hand of Gilbert has not presumed to alter the words of the songs except in minor instances when it was necessary to relate them to the story.

Pirates In Story
The story of the play centers around a group of English men and women who sail out to sea to capture a band of notorious pirates.

Another feature of the production will be the violin accompaniment of Dwight Weller. Mr. Weller, a local musician, is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Piano accompaniments will be given by Ruth Blum and Mrs. Grace T. Kiger, who is directing the cast of 69 players.

Make-up will be done by Sam-

Pickaway County Outdoors

Interest in soil conservation in Pickaway County has developed to such an extent that a sizable group of farmers of the county is advocating the passage of House Bill 643 proposing soil conservation districts for the entire state. A group of farmers and agricultural authorities from the county met with a committee from the Ohio legislature Tuesday night to urge passage of the bill.

In substance the bill proposes the establishment of a State Soil Conservation Committee, which would be composed of the State Director of Agricultural Extension Service, the Director of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, the State Director of Agriculture, the Conservation Commissioner, the State Forester and two farmers appointed by the governor. No salaries would be provided for committee members.

The committee would have power to advise and assist in the organization of districts, to define the boundaries of districts, to bring an exchange of information and experience among districts and to coordinate the several districts programs. Local districts would not be governed by the committee, however, the formulation of a work program and all activities of the district being entirely in the hands of the local people.

The districts would be organized by the farmers themselves, who petition the State Committee for a public hearing, which would be followed by a vote of a majority of the land owners in the district requesting that such a district be established. Farmers would not be required to participate in the program, participation being a purely voluntary matter. Advocates of the measure believe it would aid in the reclamation of lands damaged by erosion and poor drainage. Each district might work out its own erosion control and land use program. It might enter into agreements with the state and federal agencies for assistance in the accomplishment of its program; could enter into agreements with farmers and give them such assistance as is available for accomplishment of soil and water conservation; could manage sub-marginal lands purchased for retirement purposes and could recommend land use plans for soil conservation and do research in erosion control.

This is the season to apply Dormant Spray, County Agricultural Agent F. K. Blair reports. The purpose of the dormant spray is to prevent serious injury from European red mite, San Jose scale, peach leaf curl disease and to help control rosy aphids on apple. For the insects named, the best all-around material is lubricating oil emulsion at 3 percent strength, the county agent reports. Where red mite eggs are abundant, increasing the strength of the oil to 4 percent is desirable, and only through coverage, including tree trunk, will gain control. The spray should not be applied in the green bud stage of apple, because delaying too long may cause injury to blossom buds.

Tuesday's rain will help the meadows and wheat fields in the county which were suffering from the dry weather.

Conservation officers are reporting many young rabbits, which will help the fall crop considerably.

During this season of the year, rabbits are running around at night. Each year hundreds of rabbits are killed on the highway by careless motorists. Many of the rabbit fatalities could be avoided if drivers would exercise a little care.

Ducks and geese continue to move north to their nesting grounds, with an occasional flock stopping on a Pickaway County stream for a day or so.

Warm weather will bring groundhog hunters in the county into action. It takes lots of patience to hunt groundhogs, since they spend much of their time in their burrows and to get a shot at them one must wait for them to come out. The early morning and late afternoon is the best time to hunt them, the old timers say.

LABOR SABOTAGE

Most tragic thing about the present chaotic labor situation is the black eye which a minority of labor is giving to their co-workers all over the country. In the majority of plants and shipyards, men are working without interruption. But in certain key plants, so vital to the national defense that they could not have been picked by accident, a small minority have bogged down production. Sometimes this happens through strikes, sometimes through slowing-up and sabotage so deliberate that behind it must lurk a definite attempt by Communists to hold back national defense.

The Navy, for instance, has reports of workmen repairing warships who sleep regularly in the turrets, then collect a full day's pay. Navy yards have had especial trouble with welders.

At the Boeing airplane plant in Seattle, a slow-up system is now under Federal investigation. For months the War Department has been at a loss to understand why more planes were not delivered from the Boeing plant. It finally has turned its sabotage suspicions over to the eagle eye of J. Edgar Hoover.

Next to hurting vital defense plans, most tragic results of this slow-up strategy is the effect upon the new draft army. When the men in the camps hear of civilian workmen getting shake-down wages for slow-up tactics, compared with their meager army pay, it doesn't make for good morale.

EFFECT OF MORATORIUM

BERKELEY, Cal.—The moratorium on debts of army draftees, decreed by the federal government, in all probability will have only the slightest effect upon business selling on credit, the University of California legislative review has decided. The review was prepared for the benefit of California state legislators.

For months the War Department has been at a loss to understand why more planes were not delivered from the Boeing plant. It finally has turned its sabotage suspicions over to the eagle eye of J. Edgar Hoover.

Next to hurting vital defense plans, most tragic results of this slow-up strategy is the effect upon the new draft army. When the men in the camps hear of civilian workmen getting shake-down wages for slow-up tactics, compared with their meager army pay, it doesn't make for good morale.

EFFECT OF MORATORIUM

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10c and 25c.

69 School Pupils Have Roles In Big Operetta

This week Circleville High School music pupils have been holding their final practices of the operetta "All At Sea" which will be presented in the school auditorium Thursday and Friday evenings at 8:15. Dress rehearsal of the presentation was held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

"All At Sea" is the first operetta which Circleville high school has presented in 12 years and the presentation has many outstanding features. The operetta itself is a combination of the Gilbert and Sullivan works, "H.M.S. Pinafore," "The Pirates of Penzance," "Patience," "The Mikado" and "Iolanthe," which was written by David Stevens with music adaptation by Harvey Worthington Loomis.

This piece was written to assemble in a plausible way some of the favorite songs from the best-known operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan, associated with a slender story in such a manner that they may be presented without the sense of disconnection that attends performance of detached stories. The author in trying to preserve the atmosphere created by the master hand of Gilbert has not presumed to alter the words of the songs except in minor instances when it was necessary to relate them to the story.

Pirates in Story
The story of the play centers around a group of English men and women who sail out to sea to capture a band of notorious pirates.

Another feature of the production will be the violin accompaniment of Dwight Weller. Mr. Weller, a local musician, is a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Piano accompaniments will be given by Ruth Blum and Mrs. Grace T. Kiger, who is directing the cast of 69 players.

Make-up will be done by Sam-

MILITARY MOUTH ORGANS

WHAT Tommy Atkins wants now is mouth organs. This great military need was revealed when the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women asked Britain what was needed most for its troops. The answer was quite definite. Tommy craves music, and the simpler the outfit, the better.

So the British army will soon be pouring out its joys and sorrows on neat little harmonicas—made in Germany and imported by Canada from that country. And it seems too bad that the Germans can't hear the music.

Left to their own devices, it is possible that the British and German troops might get together through such a medium. One side could sing soulfully while the other side played an accompaniment. When shall we have such harmony again?

FLOOD BIOGRAPHIES

THE Soil Conservation Service is ready to record much important information as spring comes on. It will assemble the "biographies" of floods wherever they occur. Later the records will be sent to Army engineers, the Geological Survey and the U. S. Weather Bureau. The study covers the location of high water marks, the intensity and total amount of rains, the condition of the soil, estimates of flood damage, and so on. Newspaper accounts of any floods that occur will be added to the report.

With such information in hand, future soil conservation authorities can work more accurately and plan intelligent cooperation with farmers. Eventually, flood control works to be built at strategic points indicated by the surveys should cut down the size of future floods.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

LOVE FOR SELF-COMFORT

WASHINGTON — Interesting comparisons might be drawn from the behavior of the highly cultured, over-civilized Prince Paul, recently forced out of the Regency of Yugoslavia, and the behavior of the rough, uncultured peasants of Serbia. In fact, similar comparisons might be made with France, possibly even with other comfort-loving people.

Inside story of Prince Paul was that during the last war he went to England, while Prince Alexander, (later assassinated as King of Marseilles, struggled with his men over the Albanian Alps on the terrible retreat of 1915.

During that war Paul was asked many times to come back and don a uniform, but he remained in Oxford. He loved music, art, poetry, peace. He hated discomfort. And when Hitler demanded that Yugoslavia join the Axis, Paul preferred to take a chance on a peaceful future even if under Hitler.

There was nothing corrupt about Prince Paul (though this could not be said of certain cabinet ministers). He merely rebelled against the thought of picking up his government and living a hand-to-mouth existence while a temporary capital was set up in the mountains of central Serbia or on the plains of Macedonia. According to one diplomatic dispatch, the lack of plumbing in Monastir—where the new capital may be established—was especially repugnant to him.

On the other hand, Serb peasants knew both hardships, and what it was to fight in the last war. Of all the peoples who suffered from 1914 to 1918, none bled and died for their country more than the Serbs. Exactly one third of the population was lost in those four bloody years.

And the most significant thing about their decision last week was the fact that the Serbian people chose war, remembering 1914 and knowing that exactly the same fate awaited them again.

NEPOTISM CHAMPION

Senator Dennis Chavez was hitting closer to home than most people realized when, during the lend-lease debate, he asserted that passage of the aid-Britain measure would bankrupt the Treasury.

If anyone has reason to grow excited about the possibility of a depleted Treasury, it is the junior Senator from New Mexico, who has more relatives on the public payroll than any man in Congress. This is saying a lot because there are several mighty effective nepotists there.

It would take a corps of census takers to enumerate all the members of the three pounds of hard candy every week and has been doing so throughout most of her life. This, thinks the daughter, may have something to do with her longevity.

Maybe so, but anyone may be permitted to doubt it. Grandma is living long because of her own splendid vitality. Clearly the candy hasn't hurt her, but it isn't wise to go about recommending it for everybody.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

THAT THE administration plans creation of a sure-enough news censorship finally has been definitely charged in congress. Representative George H. Bender of Ohio said so and several other legislators more or less agreed with him, although nobody else expressed himself quite as specifically as the Buckeye member did.

The wrangle was over a $1,500,000 item in the $1,415,991,938 appropriation bill to finance what are known as the government's various "independent offices, agencies and establishments," like the Federal Trade, Federal Power and Interstate Commerce commissions.

The Congressional Directory lists about 60 of these set-ups, variously called commissions, office boards, authorities, agencies, corporations, administrations and bureaus. And still more have been added since the last directory came out. Most of them have a lot of subdivisions, too, running up to a total of several hundred. So probably they really need nearly a billion and a half to keep 'em all going.

EXECUTIVE BODIES

These outfits are executive in their nature, not much answerable to congress, which consequently is pretty jealous of 'em. It creates them initially, so it's inconsistent in the legislative branch to kick, but it does.

The row was over the allowance for the Office of Government Reports. The messy little million and a half allocated to it drew no fire as an excessive amount. The complaint was that the Office of Government Reports was established as an emergency organization that now its idea is to make itself a permanent and that its function is to be that of censoring the nation's news.

With the office's birth, Lowell Mellett was put in as its head. He's a newspaperman himself, and a corking good one, but was out of a job because he was too New Dealerish for his last paper's proprietorship. Under him the office was conducted as a clearing house for information relative to federal activities. Thus far, however, if reporters haven't been satisfied with the Mellett bureau's informativeness, they've been at liberty to get supplementary dope from dozens and scores and even hundreds of other governmental sources.

BENDER'S SUSPICION

Congressman Bender's belief is that the scheme now is to dry these other sources up, so far as they've been fountains of direct press enlightenment—to make 'em funnel their news all in to the Office of Government Reports, which will give out only what it sees fit to have printed or radio broadcast.

Lowell Mellett, in the meantime, has been elevated to the rank of one of President Roosevelt's executive assistants "with a passion for anonymity," but he likewise is the Government Reports Office's chief, just as Jesse

H. Jones is secretary of commerce, and federal loan administrator and export-import banker at the same time.

Now, Lowell has been mentioned as a probability for selection as our national censor, if we have one. I've had occasion to refer to these reports myself. I suppose Congressman Bender has heard some of this gossip. And maybe he linked it up with Lowell Mellett's name and the $1,500,000 item to maintain the Office of Government Reports indefinitely, and arrived at his censorial conclusion. He didn't succeed in knocking the item out of the appropriation bill, but he made a sizable noise about it, anyway.

PROPAGANDA

Congressman Adolph J. Sabath of Illinois, repudiating the censorship implication but tacitly conceding that the Government Reports Office may be a propaganda bureau (propaganda and a censorship are two different things; propaganda's trying to publicize what you WANT publicized, but a censorship is trying to bottle up facts that folk ought to know).

Anyway Congressman Sabath contended that he thought $1,500,000 would be well spent on the Government Reports Office to counteract "Nazi propaganda" in this country.

"If your idea is to compete with the Nazis," answered Congressman Bender, "this is a good way to do it. It'll Nazify the United States."

Acrimonious, what?

DIET AND HEALTH

Strange Case of the Man Who Chose Metal Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● We read in the paper every once in a while about somebody who has had a hairpin removed from the stomach. These reports make more impression on the laity than they do on the medical man. Every once in a while we are privileged to see a really startling example of what the stomach can do when it is put up against it.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I once was present at an operation on an elderly gentleman who had inadvertently swallowed his false teeth. The surgeon removed them without the slightest difficulty and the gentleman went on his way apparently entirely unharmed. I know he was alive five or six years later, and for all I know to the contrary, he may still be alive. However, he is much more careful with his false teeth than he was and he strenuously objects to that word "inadvertently."

One of the all-time highs in stomach testing occurred not long ago in Brattleboro, Vermont, where a man was found who had an extreme craving for a metallic diet. There were removed from his stomach 187 foreign bodies, which weighed 92 grams. His favorite food was hairpins, but he also was very fond of open safety pins. There were pieces of a safety razor blade, several staples, pieces of glass, and part of a hacksaw. He stated to the surgeon before the operation that he covered many of the objects, such as razor blades, with chewing gum or food but in spite of that at times his throat got sore.

These were all removed and he made a good recovery but he was plagued with acid indigestion and went back to his metallic diet, eating 440 pieces of glass, pins, needles, open safety pins, a bottle cap, a few fragments from a barbed wire fence, but he had lost his taste for razor blades. A few years later he did it again, swallowing a nail file, a few toothpaste tubes, while still sticking to glass, tacks, safety pins and hairpins. He recovered from all three operations.

The fear of robbery has often led to the swallowing of money or jewelry. A brilliant, celebrated doctor and antiquarian, was captured by pirates off Tunis and swallowed all the money he had on his person.

Other records we have show a dog that swallowed his collar and chain. They were missed and a search made for them, which was unsuccessful. It was only when it was noticed that the dog was ill and refused food that a hint to the whereabouts of his machinery of liberation was had.

Spoons, toothbrushes, handles of music boxes, swabs and rosaries have all been reported as having been swallowed.

Honeymoon Gold

by PEGGY DERN
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

TOM FORMAN, husky, young, but out of work, prevents BETSY CARTER from committing suicide by drowning at a southern beach. When he tells her that he must be married to get a job as caretaker of Halcyon Island, owned by JORDAN MARKHAM, a wealthy invalid, she agrees to become his wife.

CHAPTER THREE

"TLL STRING along with you," the girl told the young man, simply.

"Thanks, I won't let you regret it—if I can help it," said the man, but his tone made up for the simplicity of the words. "I've been offered a job. Sort of caretaker on an island near here where a winter resort is to be established. But in order to get the job, I have to have a wife."

The girl's eyes flew wide and her breath held suspended in her throat for a moment. The man sat quite still, his eyes meeting hers, waiting for the full meaning of his words to sink into her consciousness, and her decision to follow her understanding. He was giving her all the time she wanted; trying wordlessly to reassure her.

"You—you mean—a make-believe marriage?" she stammered after that first stunned moment.

He shook his head and his mouth was a trifle grim. "No," he told her firmly. "It's got to be a legal marriage—ring, bell and book—that sort of thing. We have to have a marriage certificate and all that. But of course it will in reality just be a make-believe. That is, in reality we will be no more than friends, comrades. It's like two partners in a business deal—"

After a moment she asked, "For how long?"

"A month, maybe two or even three," he answered her promptly. "I don't know yet. But there will be a salary which we will, of course, divide equally; food, shelter—and at the end, an annulment of the marriage if you like."

There was another moment of silence and then the girl said quietly, "When do we start?"

"You mean you'll do it? You'll trust me?"

"But of course," answered the girl, as though puzzled at such a question. "You are my friend—"

The man crushed out the tip of his cigarette and stood up. There was a telephone in a far corner of the room and he crossed to it. He was gone perhaps five minutes, and when he came back he was smiling a little.

"Feel like facing another dinner

—a real one, this time, from soup to nuts?" he asked as he drew her chair back and helped her to her feet. "We have been asked to dine with Jordan Markham."

The man nodded. "He owns the island," he answered. "And I told him this afternoon I didn't have a wife. Tonight when I telephoned him I was just before having one, he suggested I bring you over to dinner and we'd have a talk. He wants to see what we are like, both of us."

The girl stood up and they turned towards the door. Outside in the cool dusk that shadowed the ocean and the beach about them, the man said with a little laugh, "I seem to have forgotten my manners. My name's Tom Forman, incidentally."

"And mine's Elizabeth Carter—Betsy is what people call me, though."

He looked down at her and there was something in his steady blue eyes that made her heart stir just a little. "Yes, I can see it would be Betsy—not Lizzie, or Betty or even Beth. Just Betsy. It's cute—and it suits you."

They walked nearly half a mile before they reached the end of the busline. But in that walk they learned a great many things about each other; such as that she was a stenographer out of a job because the firm for whom she had worked since she finished business training (a year before) had moved its offices to Miami, and she was not a sufficiently important employee to be taken along; she was an orphan, brought up by a maiden aunt who had died when she was 16.

Tom was equally as brief in his account of himself. His father had died when he was seven and his mother had married again; there had been other children born to this union; he and his stepfather had not liked each other very well; there had been trouble, and when his mother died, soon after he was 16, he had run away and taken life into his own hands. He had come to Florida in search of a job, along, he added grimly, with several million other young men; and now it was late summer and there were no jobs to be had—unless one was married and wanted to be caretaker of an island where a winter resort was going to be built.

Betsy was worried about her bedraggled, scarcely dry clothing as she and Tom left the bus and started down the drive that led from the Ocean boulevard to the Markham place. The brisk night wind had dried her skirts a little, but she was still damp and quite uncomfortable as she walked down the drive bordered by huge oleander trees in full bloom. The very beauty and magnificence of the white villa, its windows glowing with amber light, the superlatively well-kept grounds, all added to her uneasiness.

The door was opened to them by an old man whose neat black alpaca coat was the only concession to a butler's livery. He greeted them quietly, without expression, and led the way into a long, narrow room whose walls were lined with bookshelves on three sides, the fourth side, of glass, opening to the terrace and a superb view of the ocean.

"The young people you were expecting, sir," he said, and vanished, closing the door behind him.

A man who sat in a modern, very elaborate wheelchair, wheeled toward them from one of the French doors that stood open to the terrace.

"Well, Forman, glad to see you," he said, and shook hands with the young man. "And this is Mrs. Forman, of course."

He held out his thin, frail-looking hand to Betsy as Tom said quickly, "She is to be, sir—we haven't had time to be married yet."

"Ah, yes—I understand, of course," said the old man, and looked down at Betsy's bedraggled skirts. "But, my dear, you've had an accident. You're wet."

"I—tried to kill myself by drowning," said Betsy clearly. "Only Tom came along and stopped me."

"Ah, yes," said Jordan Markham, as though hers had been the most ordinary remark, but his eyes sharpened a little as he studied her. "Well, you must be quite uncomfortable—and we can't have you sitting about courting pneumonia, now, can we?"

He rang and the old butler stood in the doorway.

"Burton, Miss Carter has had an accident. I'm sure Mrs. Burton can fix her up with something more comfortable than her present wet garments," said Mr. Markham.

"I'm sure she can, sir. If you will come this way, ma'am," said Burton as matter-of-factly as his master had spoken. He led the dazed Betsy out of the room, up a flight of wide stairs and along a corridor to a door that he opened.

MILITARY MOUTH ORGANS

WHAT Tommy Atkins wants now is mouth organs. This great military need was revealed when the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women asked Britain what was needed most for its troops. The answer was quite definite. Tommy craves music, and the simpler the outfit, the better.

So the British army will soon be pouring out its joys and sorrows on neat little harmonicas—made in Germany and imported by Canada from that country. And it seems too bad that the Germans can't hear the music.

Left to their own devices, it is possible that the British and German troops might get together through such a medium. One side could sing soulfully while the other side played an accompaniment. When shall we have such harmony again?

FLOOD BIOGRAPHIES

THE Soil Conservation Service is ready to record much important information as spring comes on. It will assemble the "biographies" of floods wherever they occur. Later the records will be sent to Army engineers, the Geological Survey and the U. S. Weather Bureau. The study covers the location of high water marks, the intensity and total amount of rains, the condition of the soil, estimates of flood damage, and so on. Newspaper accounts of any floods that occur will be added to the report.

With such information in hand, future soil conservation authorities can work more accurately and plan intelligent cooperation with farmers. Eventually, flood control works to be built at strategic points indicated by the surveys should cut down the size of future floods.

"GRANDMA GREAT," as the grandchildren of Mrs. Gertrude Peterson call her, is 102 years old, going on 103. She was born in Norway, lived in Oregon for some time, and lives now with her married daughter in Hamilton, Mont. Mrs. Peterson spends most of her time in bed or in a chair beside it. Yet she eats meat and potatoes with as much relish as a younger person. She has had to give up that favorite Scandinavian beverage, coffee, which she used to drink six times a day.

Grandma Great—better not let the children hear of this—is very fond of candy. Her daughter reports that she eats

LOVE FOR SELF-COMFORT

WASHINGTON — Interesting comparisons might be drawn from the behavior of the highly cultured, over-civilized Prince Paul, recently forced out of the Regency of Yugoslavia, and the behavior of the rough, uncultured peasants of Serbia. In fact, similar comparisons might be made with France, possibly even with other comfort-loving people.

Inside story of Prince Paul was that during the last war he went to England, while Prince Alexander, (later assassinated as King of Marseilles, struggled with his men over the Albanian Alps on the terrible retreat of 1915.

During that war Paul was asked many times to come back and don a uniform, but he remained in Oxford. He loved music, art, poetry, peace. He hated discomfort. And when Hitler demanded that Yugoslavia join the Axis, Paul preferred to take a chance on a peaceful future even if under Hitler.

There was nothing corrupt about Prince Paul (though this could not be said of certain cabinet ministers). He merely rebelled against the thought of picking up his government and living a hand-to-mouth existence while a temporary capital was set up in the mountains of central Serbia or on the plains of Macedonia. According to one diplomatic dispatch, the lack of plumbing in Monastir—where the new capital may be established—was especially repugnant to him.

On the other hand, Serb peasants knew both hardships, and what it was to fight in the last war. Of all the peoples who suffered from 1914 to 1918, none bled and died for their country more than the Serbs. Exactly one third of the population was lost in those four bloody years.

And the most significant thing about their decision last week was the fact that the Serbian people chose war, remembering 1914 and knowing that exactly the same fate awaited them again.

NEPOTISM CHAMPION

Senator Dennis Chavez was hitting closer to home than most people realized when, during the lend-lease debate, he asserted that passage of the aid-Britain measure would bankrupt the Treasury.

If anyone has reason to grow excited about the possibility of a depleted Treasury, it is the junior Senator from New Mexico, who has more relatives on the public payroll than any man in Congress. This is saying a lot because there are several mighty effective nepotists there.

It would take a corps of census tabulators to enumerate all the members of the three pounds of hard candy every week and has been doing so throughout most of her life. This, thinks the daughter, may have something to do with her longevity.

Maybe so, but anyone may be permitted to doubt it. Grandma is living long because of her own splendid vitality. Clearly the candy hasn't hurt her, but it isn't wise to go about recommending it for everybody.

Strange Case of the Man Who Chose Metal Diet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● We read in the paper every once in a while about somebody who has had a hairpin removed from the stomach. These reports make more impression on the laity than they do on the medical man. Every once in a while we are privileged to see a really startling example of what the stomach can do when it is put up against it.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Once was present at an operation on an elderly gentleman who had inadvertently swallowed his false teeth. The surgeon removed them without the slightest difficulty and the gentleman went on his way apparently entirely unharmed. I know he was alive five or six years later, and for all I know to the contrary, he may still be alive. However, he is much more careful with his false teeth than he was and he strenuously objects to that word "inadvertently."

One of the all-time highs in stomach testing occurred not long ago in Brattleboro, Vermont, where a man was found who had an extreme craving for a metallic diet. There were removed from his stomach 187 foreign bodies, which weighed 92 grams. His favorite food was hairpins, but he also was fond of open safety pins. There were pieces of a safety razor blade, several staples, pieces of glass, and part of a hacksaw. He stated to the surgeon before the operation that he covered many of the objects, such as razor blades, with chewing gum or food but in spite of that at times his throat got sore.

These were all removed and he made a good recovery but he was plagued with acid indigestion and went back to his metallic diet, eating 440 pieces of glass, nine needles, open safety pins, a bottle cap, a few fragments from a barbed wire fence, but he had lost his taste for razor blades. A few years later he did it again, swallowing a nail file, a few toothpaste tubes, while still sticking to glass, tacks, safety pins and hairpins. He recovered from all three operations.

The fear of robbery has often led to the swallowing of money or jewelry. Valiant, a celebrated doctor and antiquarian, was captured by pirates off Tunis and swallowed all the money he had on his person.

Other records we have show a dog that swallowed his collar and chain. They were missed and a search made for them, which was unsuccessful. It was only when it was noticed that the dog was ill and refused food that a hint to the whereabouts of his machinery of thraldom was had.

Spoons, toothbrushes, handles of music boxes, swabs and rosaries have all been reported as having been swallowed.

SYNOPSIS

TOM FORMAN, husky, young, but out of work, prevents BETSY CARTER from committing suicide by drowning at a southern beach. When he tells her that he must be married to get a job as caretaker of Halcyon Island, owned by JORDAN MARKHAM, a wealthy invalid, she agrees to become his wife.

CHAPTER THREE

"I'LL STRING along with you," the girl told the young man, simply.

"Thanks. I won't let you regret it—if I can help it," said the man, but his tone made up for the simplicity of the words. "I've been offered a job. Sort of caretaker on an island near here where a winter resort is to be established. But in order to get the job, I have to have a wife."

The girl's eyes flew wide and her breath held suspended in her throat for a moment. The man sat quite still, his eyes meeting hers, waiting for the full meaning of his words to sink into her consciousness, and her decision to follow her understanding. He was giving her all the time she wanted; trying wordlessly to reassure her.

"You—you mean—a make-believe marriage?" she stammered after that first stunned moment.

He shook his head and his mouth was a trifle grim. "No," he told her firmly, "it's got to be a legal marriage—ring, bell and book—that sort of thing. We have to have a marriage certificate and all that. But of course it will in reality just be a make-believe. That is, in reality we will be no more than friends, comrades. It's like two partners in a business deal."

After a moment she asked, "For how long?"

"A month, maybe two or even three," he answered her promptly. "I don't know yet. But there will be a salary which we will, of course, divide equally: food, shelter—and at the end, an annulment of the marriage if you like."

There was another moment of silence and then the girl said quietly, "When do we start?"

"You mean you'll do it? You'll trust me?"

"But of course," answered the girl, as though puzzled at such a question. "You are my friend—"

The man crushed out the tip of his cigarette and stood up. There was a telephone in a far corner of the room and he crossed to it. He was gone perhaps five minutes, and when he came back he was smiling a little.

"Feel like facing another dinner

—a real one, this time, from soup to nuts?" he asked as he drew her chair back and helped her to her feet. "We have been asked to dine with Jordan Markham."

"Jordan Markham?" she gasped. "The man nodded. 'He owns the island,' he answered. 'And I told him this afternoon I didn't have a wife. Tonight when I telephoned him I was just before having one, he suggested I bring you over to dinner and we'd have a talk. He wants to see what we are like, both of us.'"

The girl stood up and they turned towards the door. Outside in the cool dusk that shadowed the ocean and the beach about them, the man said with a little laugh, "I seem to have forgotten my manners. My name's Tom Forman, incidentally."

"And mine's Elizabeth Carter—Betsy is what people call me, though."

He looked down at her and there was something in his steady blue eyes that made her heart stir just a little. "Yes, I can see it would be Betsy—not Lizzie, or Betty or even Beth. Just Betsy. It's cute—and it suits you."

They walked nearly half a mile before they reached the end of the busline. But in that walk they learned a great many things about each other; such as that she was a stenographer out of a job because the firm for whom she had worked since she finished business training (a year before) had moved its offices to Miami, and she was not a sufficiently important employee to be taken along; she was an orphan, brought up by a maiden aunt who had died when she was 16.

Tom was equally as brief in his account of himself. His father had died when he was seven and his mother had married again; there had been other children born to this union; and he and his stepfather had not liked each other very well; there had been trouble, and when his mother died, soon after he was 16, he had run away and taken life into his own hands. He had come to Florida in search of a job, along, he added grimly, with several million other young men; and now it was late summer and there were no jobs to be had—unless one was married and wanted to be caretaker of an island where a winter resort was going to be built.

Betsy was worried about her bedraggled, scarcely dry clothing as she and Tom left the bus and started down the drive that led from the Ocean boulevard to the Markham place. The brisk night wind had dried her skirts a little, but she was still damp and quite uncomfortable as she walked down the drive bordered by huge oleander trees in full bloom. The very beauty and magnificence of the white villa, its windows glowing with amber light, the superlatively well-kept grounds, all added to her uneasiness.

The door was opened to them by an old man whose neat black alpaca coat was the only concession to a butler's livery. He greeted them quietly, without expression, and led the way into a long, narrow room whose walls were lined with bookshelves on three sides, the fourth side, of glass, opening to the terrace and a superb view of the ocean.

"The young people you were expecting, sir," he said, and vanished, closing the door behind him.

A man who sat in a modern, very elaborate wheelchair, wheeled toward them from one of the French doors that stood open to the terrace.

"Well, Forman, glad to see you," he said, and shook hands with the young man. "And this is Mrs. Forman, of course."

He held out his thin, frail-looking hand to Betsy as Tom said quickly, "She is to be, sir—we haven't had time to be married yet."

"Ah, yes—I understand, of course," said the old man, and looked down at Betsy's bedraggled skirts. "But, my dear, you've had an accident. You're wet."

"I—tried to kill myself by drowning," said Betsy clearly. "Only Tom came along and stopped me."

"Ah, yes," said Jordan Markham, as though he had been the most ordinary remark, but his eyes sharpened a little as he studied her. "Well, you must be quite uncomfortable—and we can't have you sitting about courting pneumonia, now, can we?"

He rang and the old butler stood in the doorway.

"Burton, Miss Carter has had an accident. I'm sure Mrs. Burton can fix her up with something more comfortable than her present wet garments," said Mr. Markham.

"I'm sure she can, sir. If you will come this way, ma'am," said Burton as matter-of-factly as his master had spoken. He led the dazed Betsy out of the room, up a flight of wide stairs and along a corridor to a door that he opened.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

THAT THE administration plans creation of a sure-enough news censorship finally has been definitely charged in congress. Representative George H. Bender of Ohio said so and several other legislators more or less agreed with him, although nobody else expressed himself quite as specifically as the Buckeye member did.

The wrangle was over a $1,500,000 item in the $1,415,991,938 appropriation bill to finance what are known as the government's various "independent offices, agencies and establishments," like the Federal Trade, Federal Power and Interstate Commerce commissions.

The Congressional Directory lists about 60 of these set-ups, variously called commissions, office boards, authorities, agencies, corporations, administrations and bureaus. And still more have been added since the last directory came out. Most of them have a lot of subdivisions, too, running up to a total of several hundred. So probably they really need nearly a billion and a half to keep 'em all going.

EXECUTIVE BODIES

These outfits are executive in their nature, not much answerable to congress, which consequently is pretty jealous of 'em. It creates them initially, so it's inconsistent in the legislative branch to kick, but it does.

The row was over the allowance for the Office of Government Reports. The messy little million and a half allocated to it drew no fire as an excessive amount. The complaint was that the Office of Government Reports was established as an emergency organization, that now its idea is to make itself a permanent one and that its function is to be that of censoring the nation's news.

With the office's birth, Lowell Mellett was put in as its head. He's a newspaperman himself, and a corking good one, but was out of a job because he was too New Dealerish for his last paper's proprietorship. Under him the office was conducted as a clearing house for information relative to federal activities. Thus far, however, if reporters haven't been satisfied with the Mellett bureau's informativeness, they've been at liberty to get supplementary dope from dozens and scores and even hundreds of other governmental sources.

BENDER'S SUSPICION

Congressman Bender's belief is that the scheme now is to dry these other sources up, so far as they've been fountains of direct press enlightenment—to make 'em funnel their news all in to the Office of Government Reports, which will give out only what it sees fit to have printed or radio broadcast.

Lowell Mellett, in the meantime, has been elevated to the rank of one of President Roosevelt's executive assistants "with a passion for anonymity," but he likewise is the Government Reports Office's chief, just as Jesse

H. Jones is secretary of commerce, and federal loan administrator and export-import banker at the same time.

Now, Lowell has been mentioned as a probability for selection as our national censor, if we have one. I've had occasion to refer to these reports myself. I suppose Congressman Bender has heard some of this gossip. And maybe he linked it up with Lowell Mellett's name and the $1,500,000 item to maintain the Office of Government Reports indefinitely, and arrived at his censorial conclusion. He didn't succeed in knocking the item out of the appropriation bill, but he made a sizable noise about it, anyway.

PROPAGANDA

Congressman Adolph J. Sabath of Illinois, repudiating the censorship implication but tacitly conceding that the Government Reports Office may be a propaganda bureau (propaganda and a censorship are two different things; propaganda's trying to publicize what you WANT publicized, but a censorship is trying to bottle up facts that folk ought to know)—Anyway Congressman Sabath contended that he thought $1,500,000 would be well spent on the Government Reports Office to counteract "Nazi propaganda" in this country.

"If your idea is to compete with the Nazis," answered Congressman Bender, "this is a good way to do it. It'll Nazify the United States."

Acrimonious, what?

Buckeye Hopefuls Go Through Muddy Drill

COLUMBUS, April 2—Rain or shine, mud or fast track makes no difference to Coach Paul Brown at Ohio State University. Gone are the days of indoor work when rain falls or mud covers the gridiron.

The new Buck chief took his Scarlet and Gray gridders outside Tuesday in the first drill of the spring season and before he called a halt "just before dark" they were caked with "good clean dirt" as Mr. Brown pointed out to sports writers.

More than 300 fans braved the rain and mud at the big Buckeye Stadium to witness Mr. Brown's debut in Ohio State football. And they were reluctant to leave after three hours of blocking, tackling and sprinting drills which came at intervals during the afternoon.

The varsity group working under Brown, Hugh McGranahan, Carroll Widdoes and Vic Marino, former Ohio State star, was composed of 45 freshmen, sophomores and juniors while another group of 37 worked on the reserve squad under the supervision of Eddie Blicke.

University officials predicted today that some 15,000 to 20,000 fans would probably witness the annual clinic game on May 10 at the Stadium as the squad winds up its spring training work.

CONN CERTAIN TO BE CHAMP?

Manager Johnny Ray Says Lack Of Weight Not To Handicap Youngster

BARLUND BOUT NEXT

Ex-Pittsburgh Pug Points To Dempsey, Others As Being Light

By H. C. Warren
CHICAGO, April 2—"Make no mistake gentlemen, you are looking at the next heavyweight champion of the world."

Quiet, ring-scarred Johnny Ray, former Pittsburgh featherweight, made this prediction today as he pointed to his charge, former Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn, who was rounding out a sparring session in preparation for his 12-round bout with Gunnar Barlund at the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

As Conn walked on the scales, causing the needle to rest near 182 pounds, Ray expressed satisfaction over the condition of the Pittsburgh candidate for Joe Louis' pugilistic crown. Despite his listless showing against sparring mates the slightly drawn and tired appearing Conn evinced little concern over his bout with Barlund.

Weight, Experience Vital

As he waved Conn to the showers, Ray shrugged off the suggestion that such fighters as Louis and Barlund carry considerable weight and ring experience advantage over his man. He said:

"Barlund and Louis weigh more than 200 pounds and Conn will enter the ring around 182 pounds—so what? Let's take a look at the record of this heavyweight business. When Dempsey knocked out Jess Willard in three rounds at Toledo in 1919, how much did he weigh? Well, right then he weighed 182 pounds and he was the same height as Billy is now, six feet, one inch.

"Let's go back a little farther. When Jim Corbett knocked out John L. Sullivan in 21 rounds back in 1892, Corbett tipped the beams at 180 and Sullivan weighed 200.

"You boys also can find the name of Mickey Walker on your record books. He never weighed more than 165 pounds, but what he did to some of the ranking heavyweights of his time was something to marvel at. What did he do? Well he whipped such heavyweights as King Levinsky, Paulino Uzcudun, Johnny Risko, Les Kennedy, Art Dukuh and earned himself a draw with Jack Sharkey, who later became the heavyweight champ."

Ray said he and Conn will be at ringside next Monday night when Joe Louis meets Tony Musto in St. Louis. Conn expressed a hope that Musto "will stay around long enough" to enable him to make a thorough study of the Louis fighting machine.

ODDS ON LOU NOVA TO WIN FROM MAX BAER

NEW YORK, April 2—Odds were 7 to 5 today that Lou Nova will beat former Heavyweight Champion Max Baer in their 12-round rumpus at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Nova concluded his workouts with four rounds of boxing at a local gym yesterday, but he was none too impressive. Baer will finish his heavy work this afternoon by sparring four rounds at his Lakewood, N. J., training camp.

ARNOVICH HITS HOMER TO DEFEAT CLEVELAND

DECATUR, Ala., April 2—A home run in the eighth inning by Morrie Arnovich with Burgess Whitehead on deck gave the New York Giants a 3 to 1 decision over the Cleveland Indians and the clubs today moved up to Selma, Ala., to continue their spring warfare. A half holiday declared by city officials brought an overflow crowd to watch the Major Leaguers in action yesterday.

It is estimated that only six or seven people in a million are struck by lightning.

County, WPA Begin Huge Road Improvement Job

200 Men To Be Employed During Winchester Highway Work

County commissioners and WPA officials, Wednesday, opened what they believed would be the biggest road project in the county this summer. The 3.33 mile road construction program on the Canal Winchester road, beginning at the Franklin County line and running south in Pickaway County, will employ an average of 200 men a month for the next six months, WPA officials estimate.

About 75 WPA employees were placed on the job Wednesday morning, and as projects elsewhere in the county were completed, men will be transferred to the Canal Winchester project until about 200 men are employed.

Construction work will include widening the pavement to 18 feet and the roadway to 34 feet, the installation of six slab-top culverts one beam bridge and several pipe culverts, officials at the county engineer's office said. After a base course of bank-run gravel has been applied, a top dressing will be spread, making the paved portion of the highway 18 feet wide.

Twenty-seven WPA men now working on a ditch cleaning project in Walnut Township are expected to complete their work by the middle of April if favorable weather prevails and then will be transferred to the Canal Winchester project.

Other construction projects in the county included the Crownover Mill, Perry Township, road-widening program and the Turkey Run bridge project in Walnut Township. About 110 men are now working on the four miles of Crownover Mill road near Williamsport. The project is about 70 percent completed; WPA officials estimate and predict that it will be completed by the first of August.

Turkey Run bridge has kept 37 men employed since March 13. Construction is now well begun, officials report, and if weather permits, first cement will be poured yet this week.

NINE CONFEREES RESUME CONFAB AFTER F. D. PLEA

agreement supplanting the one that expired at midnight Monday is signed. Tuesday was a holiday in the mines in observance of the eight-hour day. Therefore, today marked the first day of actual work stoppage.

Violence already has broken out in "bloody" Harlan County, Ky., where pickets clashed with non-union miners, sheriffs and mine guards. One miner was shot fatally and another wounded.

Steelmen spent all day Tuesday and Tuesday night striving to bring the operators and miners together. When their behind-closed-doors sessions broke up at 11:30 p. m., the government conciliator summoned the press and carefully read them the following statement:

"It is near midnight. No agreement has been concluded. Progress has been made. The differences are not insurmountable.

"A negotiated settlement is always preferable to any other. Because of this fact it is proposed that the conferees exercise an extension of not over 48 hours for continued and diligent negotiations.

"I have every confidence in the

GOVERNOR ASKS FOR AID OF U. S.

that the state's National Guard has been inducted into federal service and now is stationed at Camp Livingston, Alexandria, La., and that Wisconsin has as yet not organized a home guard to replace the state militia.

Max W. Babb, president of Allis-Chalmers who joined with the governor in the decision to close the plant, also confessed himself "beat."

"The matter is entirely out of our hands now," Babb said. "We opened our factory when the government asked us to, but couldn't cope with this situation."

For a time last night, city authorities were concerned by a report the CIO would call a half-holiday of its claimed 65,000 members in the county for greater picketing of the plant. Union leaders said early today, however, that in view of the plant's closing the holiday plan was deferred.

Both Gov. Heil and Babb were reported to have telephoned Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox in Washington last night. It was at the request of Knox and OPM Director William S. Knudsen, who appealed to the strikers' patriotism, that the plant was reopened last Friday.

Between 35 and 50 persons were injured in yesterday's fighting, a number requiring hospital attention for the effects of tear gas used by police.

At the height of the riot, Gov. Heil, several hundred workers, and 450 police and sheriff's deputies were imprisoned in the plant by angry pickets. They were released only after Harold Christoffel, local UAW head, addressed the crowd from the top of a truck and announced the plant was to be closed.

Actually, it was the governor's first appearance outside the plant that precipitated the most serious fighting.

"I want you to be good citizens," the governor said to the restless crowd. He related that he was doing what he could to bring about a strike settlement, but that in the meantime he hoped unionists would keep the peace.

The governor then began walking back through the plant entrance. A stone crashed against a nearby window. Then other missiles filled the air; windows of the governor's car were smashed, and soon the crowd was entirely out of control, with the governor and the police hemmed inside the plant.

CIO officials have claimed the company should be forced to accept a peace formula advanced by the OPM March 1, which the union accepted but which the company turned down. The strikers seek wage increases and "union security."

intention of the conferees to reach an equitable agreement on all issues before them and believe it can be done within that time.

"If a mutual agreement is not made within the 48 hour extension of negotiations, I think I can assure the country that a temporary arrangement for resumption of operations will be made by the conferees at that time to be effective pending completion of an agreement.

"I therefore assure the public that there is no cause for alarm."

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

The labour of the foolish wearieth every one of them, because he knoweth not how to go to the city—Ecclesiastes 10:15.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fitzpatrick, 347 East Main Street, and Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzpatrick, 521 Elm Avenue, left for Cuyahoga Falls Wednesday to attend the funeral of Harry Molster. Mr. Molster at one time lived in Circleville and married the former Cora Louise Fitzpatrick.

Eugene McKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam McKenzie of Pickaway Township, has enlisted for ground work in the United States Air Corps. Mr. McKenzie enlisted for three years of service and left March 30 for Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

A large crowd is expected when Frank B. Pauly, Columbus, field representative for the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, speaks at a dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the American Hotel Hurricane Thursday at 6:15 p. m.

The public is invited to the Methodist Church, Tuesday noon. Start serving at 11 o'clock. Chicken Patties, whipped potatoes, lardered carrots on peas, Spring salad, home made rolls, chocolate sundaes. 35c.—ad.

Superintendents of Pickaway County schools will meet with Superintendent George McDowell Thursday afternoon.

Arthur Barthelmas, East Mill Street, is ill at his home.

Robert L. Breher of North Court Street, who suffered a relapse after returning home from Grant Hospital, Columbus, is improving and expects to be up Thursday.

Mrs. G. R. Gardner of Ashville is slowly recovering after a two-week illness at her home.

STOCK MARKET LOWER

NEW YORK, April 2—The stock market turned lower today after a hesitant opening. Some fractional gains scored in early deals were wiped out and losses of similar size substituted. Both leading motor shares were down—Chrysler ½ and General Motors ¼. Youngstown was the only steel stock to show a gain.

ANDREW MOORE RITES

Funeral services for Andrew L. Moore, 63, who died Tuesday at the home of his brother, Alexander, of Circleville Route 3, will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Defenbaugh Funeral Home on East Main Street. Burial will be in Tarlton Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home after five o'clock Wednesday.

MOTORIST FACES CADY

Ira Gilmore, 154 Hayward Street, was in city jail Wednesday, awaiting hearing before Mayor William Cady on drunken driving charges. He was arrested at 2:55 a. m. Wednesday by Patrolman Carl Radcliff.

GREATEST FORD PLANT CLOSED

fled. However, for the most part the police took no part in the many encounters between pickets and men who came out from the plant.

Some 200 men came out on an overpass after entering the plant the same way and showered pickets with pop bottles and sections of lead pipe. When they entered, there were about 2,000 in the group, mostly Negroes.

The pickets laid large planks studded with spikes across one road so that the tires of entering cars would be punctured. One automobile, driven by a Negro, managed to go through two picket lines. It was followed onto company property and the windows smashed. Ford service men came to the assistance of the driver who was uninjured.

The assistance of the federal government in the dispute will be given with the arrival sometime today of Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey who has been ill at his Chester, Pa., home with arthritis. It was Dewey who has shuttled back and forth between company and union officials seeking to settle their differences.

Meantime, Mayor John L. Carey of Dearborn said he had dispatched a telegram to Gov. Van Wagoner and State Police Commissioner Olander, and demanded assistance in controlling the area around the plant.

In his wire, the mayor said that "Dearborn is the scene of flagrant disregard of all rights of citizens, both union and non-union... streets are blocked off, citizens are being beaten and molested in their lawful attempts to return to work. Immediate action on your part is imperative."

Urgent Appeal Heard

The mayor said he wanted the governor to "send some state police in here right away."

It was said by officials of the companies that work was going on at the Highland Park and Lincoln plants, the men reporting "as usual" today.

The union statement was signed by R. J. Thomas, president; George F. Adde, international secretary-treasurer; and Michael F. Widman Jr., director of the union's "all out" drive to organize the nearly 100,000 workers in the Michigan plants of the company.

The union asserted its action "was forced by the company which has for months... engaged in deliberate and continuous efforts to prevent adjustment of the Ford workers grievances..."

The statement further declared "the strike will be maintained with complete discipline and effectiveness; it will be maintained peacefully."

Dewey To Leave For Strike Scene

CHESTER, Pa., April 2—In between long distance telephone calls to the scene of the strike, James Francis Dewey, crack federal labor conciliator, today packed for a hurried trip to Detroit to attempt settlement of the CIO walkout at the Ford Motor Company's River Rouge plant.

Dewey, who has been in constant touch with company and CIO leaders in the mid-west city since the strike began, said he would leave early today from his Chester home.

"I have been conferring with various people in Detroit trying to set a conference," the labor expert explained. "I'd like to get one arranged before I leave, but I'll be going shortly whether a conference is arranged or not."

Dewey added that he would need additional medical treatment for arthritis which attacked him several weeks ago. "I'll have to get my knee taped up so I can walk," he said.

Union To Demand 5-Point Contract

DETROIT, April 2—UAW-CIO officials today listed a five point plan for settlement of the strike which closed down the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Co. The points were:

- 1.—Immediate reinstatement of all workers discharged because of union affiliation.
- 2.—A wage increase of ten cents an hour to bring wage rates of Ford workers up to rates employed by General Motors and Chrysler.
- 3.—A seniority system to govern layoffs and rehiring.
- 4.—A shop steward system to handle grievances as they arise.
- 5.—Abolition of the company's so-called espionage system and the Company Service Department.

HOPE THAT DUCE MAY HELP AVERT WAR ABANDONED

ents, said he still hoped for peace. "I hope war can be avoided," the 17-year-old monarch declared.

"But if it comes to fighting I shall fight myself, leading my army."

Assurances that the United States would extend material aid to Yugoslavia in the event of a German attack spurred the Belgrade regime in its defensive measures, which were rushed in the face of German warnings.

Foreign Minister Nincic had two long telephone conversations with the Yugoslav legation in Washington last night.

Mannheim Blasted

From London came word that Mannheim's docks, passenger and freight stations, engineering and chemical works and to a considerable extent its entire industrial life have been dislocated by RAF attacks. British Air Ministry sources promised that from now on Germany will have "other Coventrys."

With its bigger planes capable of bearing heavier bomb loads for longer distances, it was stated, the RAF now is only beginning to carry a real "blitz" back to Germany.

Another side of the picture is presented in information received in London which states that in German-occupied Poland and in the province of Posen the Germans have published appeals to the population and to welfare organizations to prepare billets for a mass evacuation of German children "according to the wishes of the Fuehrer."

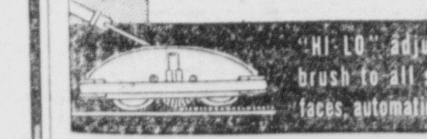

According to these reports, 15,000 German children recently have arrived in these areas.

Mass transportation to Poland and former Austria of German children, mothers and expectant mothers is now reported under way. Germans who can afford it also are leaving bombed areas for Austria and for sections of occupied France.

These are evidence of what Germany is taking as the "blitz returns home," and as it progresses the British are convinced that "they can't take it the way we can."

This morning British fighters shot down an enemy raider off the Devon Coast. Nazi raids against Britain virtually halted during the night save for a few bombs dropped on southwestern England.

A Berlin announcement said German submarines sank five convoys ships totalling 35,000 tons and damaged a sixth vessel of 6,000 tons.

ONE STRIKE AT END

OWOSSO, Mich., April 2—Striking employees of the Owosso Metal Industries Co. went back to work today after the UAW-CIO and management ended difficulties.

UAW-CIO Director Carl A. Swanson said a signed agreement permitted strikers to return to work without discrimination. Under the agreement, women workers will get a three cent raise while negotiations will be started to adjust wages for male employees, Swanson said.
